OPTION A

FOREVER YOUNG?

1 The notion that growing old is a natural, inevitable part of life is so fixed in our culture that we rarely
2 question it. But scientists like Richard Walker have been questioning it for a long time. When Walker saw
3 on TV a girl who seemed to be “frozen in time”, he thought she could help him test his theory. She was 12
4 years old, but weighed just 6 kg and was 69 cm long. He had heard of other genetic diseases, such as
5 progeria and Werner syndrome, which cause premature ageing in children and adults respectively. But her
6 disease stopped development and apparently, Walker suspected, the ageing process.

7 Ageing happens because in human biology change never stops. From birth until puberty, change is 8 crucial: we need to grow and mature. After we’ve matured, however, our adult bodies don’t need change.
9 If you’ve built the perfect house, you would want to stop adding bricks at a certain point. However, there is 10 no “stop switch” for development, so, unfortunately or not, we continue changing until we die.

11 If Walker’s team discover the cause of ageing, there will still be a long way to go. The researchers
12 would need to obtain results in laboratory mice, which typically have a life expectancy of two or three 13 years. Then they would have to find some therapy to achieve the same effects on people, and finally 14 they’d have to begin long and expensive clinical trials to make sure that the treatment was safe and 15 effective. Walker, now 74, is aware that it would come too late for him: “I feel like Moses – after wandering
16 in the desert I can see but not enter the Promised Land.”

I * COMPREHENSION (This section consists of six items combining ‘True/False’ and/or ‘Multiple Choice’ questions) (3 points)
CHOOSE AND WRITE THE CORRECT OPTION (A, B, C or D). (0.5 points each)

1. The girl in the TV show was like “frozen in time” because...

- (a) her parents kept her alive thanks to cold-induced therapy. (b) she suffered from progeria and was growing old extremely fast.
(c) she had hardly changed from the time she was a little baby. (d) she had stopped growing old physically but not psychologically.

2. Even after they find out the cause of ageing there is a long way to go because...

- (a) the process involves three different phases of tests that will take years. (b) lab tests with rats usually take longer than 2 or 3 years.
(c) Walker is old now and is impatient to get results so that he can save himself. (d) no anti-aging treatment can ever be found.

ARE THESE STATEMENTS TRUE OR FALSE? JUSTIFY YOUR ANSWERS WITH THE PRECISE WORDS OR PHRASES FROM THE TEXT (0.5 points each)

3. People normally assume that ageing is a biological fact of life.

4. Walker found inspiration to continue his research in order to prove his theories on a TV programme.

5. Werner syndrome is a disease that affects little children.

6. Human beings need to grow and change all their life in order to stay strong and healthy.

II * USE OF ENGLISH (4 points; questions 7-12, 0.25 points each; 13-17, 0.5 points each)

OPTION B

LADY IN BLACK

- 1 Mystery surrounded a woman in long black clothes who was seen walking alone across America for months.
2 She barely spoke and she didn't say why she was walking. "Nobody knows her story. She won't talk to anybody",
3 some investigators said. There have been all kinds of speculation about her: Was she on a religious mission? Was
4 she from an Islamic nation? Was she a ghost, a prophet, or was she mentally ill? According to those who followed
5 her on her journey, she refused any offers of water, food or accommodation.
6 She was a lonely figure who voiced her desire that people would mind their own business and respect her
7 solitude. However, the remarkable curiosity she excited brought the opposite effect: she rose to fame with a
8 Facebook page created by fans and followers, where her travels were documented and photos of her along her
9 journey were posted daily. The page, which has accumulated nearly 60,000 fans, was full of messages of support,
10 inspiration and admiration.
11 Eventually, the woman in black told the police she had reached her final destination when she arrived at 12 Winchester, Virginia. It was there and then that the woman in black's true story emerged: Elizabeth Poles, a widow
13 and veteran of the US military, had been walking home for the past two months, back to where her father raised her
14 in Winchester. "The Winchester Police Department wants local residents to know that she will be part of the 15 community now and to respect her privacy if you see her in the area," a police spokesman said. To the surprise of 16 those who expected that the story had to do with spirituality... the mystery is over.
